YELLOW FEVER.

A Ship With the Scourge Aboard at Hampton Roads.

The Captain Dies and Three of the Crew Are Now Down With the Terrible Disease.

WASHINGTON, July 14—Concerning the arrival of the British brig Darina, from Havana in Hampton Roads, with her captain dead and three of his crew down with yellow fever, Surgeon General Wyman, of the Marine hospital service has this to say

"The Cape Charles quarantine station is simple to handle an mission of that kind It consists of a house, tents and nurses on Testerman's Island, which is twenty miles from Old Point and a mile from the seaward extremity of Cape Charles. The boarding of incoming vessels is done from the steamer Damar, which lies at Old Point, and anchored a mile off Newport News is the receiving ship, dismantled, capable of accommodating from 500 to 600 people. She will be used for housing persons taken from infected vessels, and hold the proper number of days

"We have also the revenue cutter Boing, which lies in one of the fresh water creeks and may be taken some distance from the main land at a moment's notice. The last on the list is the distinctive steamer, Robert Koch, called after the celebrated German physician. She is fitted with a sulphur blast furnace, tanks for heating a bichloride of mercury solution, with steam pumps, etc The Cape Charles quarantine station is in charge of Dr. T. B Percy, with Dr. Bullock as assistant They have a hospital steam yard.

"In addition to these two vessels and physicians and nurses from Norfolk and near by points at any time in numbers sufficient to meet any emergency. The present force and their facilities are ample to meet any demand not larger than that of the present.

"There is not the slightest danger that the disease can spread inland towards Washington, Baltimore or any of the cities in touch with that part of the coast The arrangements at the Cape Charles station are thorough and ample for handling arrivals at yellow fever or small pox.

"In handling cholera they are not ample. A comparatively limited number of cases could be handled, but in cases of the arrival of an infected ship containing 1,000 to 1,500 immigrants the station would be utterly swamped. Even then, however, there would be no danger. Some of the patients would be faced for on Fisherman's Island and on the Ewing, which we could use for a hospital

"The infected vessel with the others would be sent to the Delaware Breakwater station, which is distant but four or five hours sail, and has ample facilities.

"The work of placing the Cape Charles station in condition to handle any number of patients and suspects is proceeding rapidly. It will be completed in thirty days. Two hundred tents are now at Fisherman's Island. We are building a pier there which will hold the steam disinfecting plant When completed the Cape Charles station will be one of the most effective in the country."

A DRUNKEN FATHER.

Section Foreman Causes the Probable Death of Three of His Children.

FINDLAY, Ohio, July 14—Word has just reached this city of a case of paternal cruelty at Pemberville, a small town north of this city. William Cook, a section foreman on the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo railroad, went home in a drunken condition and went to the beds where his four children were sleeping and made a murderous assault upon them with a mattock handle. The crazy father picked one of the children up and dashed him against the wall and crushing, inflicting injuries that will prove fatal. The entire village is up in arms and lynch law is seriously talked of. Two or more of the children will die.

AGAINST AMERICA.

DAYTON, Ohio, July 14—The wife of Emanuel Trubler a prosperous farmer on the Nesus Pike four miles from this city, was taken suddenly ill about two years ago and died Her death was unexplained and the peculiar nature and suddenness of her illness created some comment The sad affair, which left Mr. Trubler a widower and five children motherless, was almost forgotten in the neighborhood when a similar occurred which vividly recalled the death of Mrs. Trubler. Two weeks ago one of the children died with exactly the same puzzling circumstances as were developed in the sickness of the mother Since then two others have passed away and the two surviving children are suffering with the same symptoms exhibited in the preceding deaths. The physicians in attendance stated that they discovered strong evidence of corrosive poisoning The affair is being investigated by the authorities.

This was one of the pension fraud cases. Evidence was adduced to show that it was impossible for her to know positively who her parents were and the prisoner was acquitted. Other cases were postponed till November. Judge Hughes, in continuing the cases, said that the government was making a very poor showing and that he continued all of the cases so that the detectives could secure more and better evidence.

COURT MARTIAL.

READY FOR BUSINESS.

The Chemical Bank of Chicago Opens Its Doors Again.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The Chemical bank will be opened for business tomorrow. The amount of money necessary to be deposited with the comptroller of the currency—40 per cent of the capital stock of $1,000,000—has been so deposited and all is in readiness for a resumption of business It is estimated that the impairment of capital caused by the forced suspension of the bank will amount to 15 per cent, or about $150,000. This loss is absolutely all that has been sustained. There will be new directors and new officers chosen and the concern will be managed by persons other than those who were in control when the bank closed.

FLAGS AT HALF MAST.

The White City Mourns for the Victims of the Fire.

All Nations Honor the Brave Firemen Who Lost Their Lives—World's Fair Notes.

WORLDS FAIR GROUNDS, July 14.—A spectacle which no man ever witnessed or seeing in the White City presented itself to the visitors this morning when they passed through the gates. The exposition was in mourning for the victims of the cold storage calamity. From every flag pole on all the buildings, from the lions building at the north extremity of the park to the forestry building on the lake shore, south from the eastern side of manufactures' building to the Cottage Grove avenue gates of the Midway Plaisance, fluttered and drooped the flags of all nations. All were lowered to half mast in silent memory of the heroic firemen and others who suffered and died at duty's call

The burial of all that remains of the unidentified firemen was made the occasion of the exposition's tribute to their memory by the lowering of the flags.

Nearly 200 laborers and roasters were at work on the fire mine this morning removing the decaying goods, the charred timbers and the mass of pipes which obstruct the men in their search for more bodies, which may be lying under the debris near the smokestack. A repelling odor comes continually from underneath the pile of wreckage to the south and west of the smokestack close to the boilers, and as most of the decaying stuff lies in another direction it is feared that other bodies will be unearthed

The whole work of the morning is being done in the direction of the boilers from the edge of the ruins, but the oppressive heat and twisted mass of pipes which formed part of the ice making machinery, retard the progress of the workers. The custom house inspectors keep a watchful eye on all the bonded wines, ales and liquors which were brought on. Much of it is unbroken and the salvage will considerably reduce the loss to the owners and exhibitors

When daylight came an inspection of the big buildings, the roofs and ventilators was made to see what damage had been done by the electrical storm, which raged all through the night The roofs withstood the torrent of rain better than was expected, only a few minor leaks being found. The damage to exhibits was light. A telephone instrument was burned out in machinistration building and a statue on machinery hall was struck by lightning, falling to the ground, but no one was injured.

CAN'T GET DRINKS!

South Carolina May Have the Most Rigid Prohibition

If the Decision in the Darlington Case is Sustained by the Supreme Court.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 14—Temporary injunctions closing the Greenville and Walhalla counties dispensaries were yesterday granted by Judges Norton and McIver Papers are being prepared in other counties, to secure temporary injunctions, to be followed by an effort to oust them permanent on allegations solely of irregularity in appointment of dispensaries.

The constitutional fight will be left to an appeal from Judge Hudson's decision in the Darlington case to the supreme court. If Judge Hudson's decision is sustained South Carolina will have the most rigid prohibition in the world, for then liquor could not be obtained in cases of sickness, nor alcohol for druggists' prescriptions. Nor wine for the communion service.

The celebrated Evans act opens with the prohibition on the sale of manufacture of liquor save through a state dispensary Judge Hudson decides the prohibition feature to be constitutional and the dispensary feature unconstitutional.

NOVEL LAW CASE.

Erroneous Bookkeeping Causes a Mistake of $1,669.

Which is Discovered After It is Paid and Settled—The Electric Light Company vs. Well Bros.

A law case of considerable interest and one involving erroneous bookkeeping, has been commenced in the superior court, by the Fort Wayne Electric Light company against Abraham Well and Isaac Well, partners doing business in Adams, etc., in this city, under the firm name of Well Brothers

The petition, which was drawn up by Breen & Morris, the attorneys for the plaintiff, states the points in the case, and the substance of its allegations are here quoted

It was that on the 28th day of last April the Fort Wayne Electric Light company sold to Well Bros., 26,501 pounds of brass borings, for which they agreed to pay six and one half cents a pound, and which for the whole bill would have amounted to the sum of $1,724.59, but by an unconscious mistake of the bookkeeper of the Electric Light company it was charged at the rate of $1 a ton, making $53 for the sale of the brass borings.

This latter stated bill of $53 was made out and sent to Well Brothers for payment and they paid it, as the petition states, knowing that it was a mistake, and instructed their bookkeeper, Geo A Markey, to close up the account as settled and paid in full on the defendants books. This the bookkeeper refused to do and he was discharged and the defendants closed up the account on the books as settled themselves.

It was not until the 6th day of July that the plaintiff discovered the mistake. They then made out a balance bill of $1,669.59 and presented it to the defendants, but payment was refused.

A train hearing parties who have been attending the Sauerfest at Painesville, Ohio, to the world's fair, passed west over the Nickel Plate at noon today. There were 200 people in the party and the train consisted of five cars. Many of the excursionists took dinner with Landlord Connolly.

A few days ago the sale of the Barnes restaurant and confectionery to Messrs Wing & Wilson was announced in THE SENTINEL. All arrangements for the transfer of the extensive business were made. Messrs. Wing & Wilson decided to make the purchase as agreed, and backed out of the transaction Mr. Barnes will conduct the business as usual.

Yesterday the A. N. T. held a very pleasant picnic up the St. Joe river, near the Hayden grounds in honor of Mr Minnie, of Detroit, and Mrs. Lockwick, of Toledo, who have been the guests of friends in the city. Much fishing and rowing were the features of the day. Those present were Misses Nelly O'Connors, Mary Shuler, Nelly Fox, Carrie Regner, Lenora Hunter, Clara Shuler, Ko Kagner, Anna Dougherty, Emma Goldsche, L. Dell Schantz, Ina Fox Clement, and Messrs Arthur Yoys, Charles Wheeler, Ernest Wheeler, Peter Wheeler, Frank Burke, Chas Schantz, Ed Bayley, E. Miller, Harry Langsdale.

VIOLENTLY INSANE.

Mrs. Stinchcomb, of Iowa, Taken to the Hospital.

She Imagined Some One Was Going to Kill Her—Travelling Alone and Eighty-Two Years Old

Dr C. B. Stemen was called very early this morning. Yesterday morning he received a dispatch from the conductor of No. 8 that an insane woman was on the train and he had to be looked after. Dr. Stemen took Officer Walda and had a cab in waiting at the depot when the train pulled in. It was found that the insane party was a little, old woman, wrinkled and bent and dressed in very ordinary clothing. She was quite violent and did not want to be taken off in the cab. She was, however, driven to the St. Joseph hospital where she said her name was Mrs. Anna Stinchcomb. The unfortunate woman also stated that she was eighty-two years of age and had traveled all the way from Iowa alone. She was bound for Canton, Ohio, where she has a son. She was greatly worried by the noise and confusion at Chicago and shortly after the train pulled out became quite violent. She imagined she was locked up in the car and was not allowed to go out and thought some one wanted to kill her. The conductor persuaded the old lady that she was suffering with rheumatism and induced her to leave the train here by telling her that she would be cared for at the hospital. Mrs Stinchcomb rested quietly all night but did not regain her mind. This afternoon she was taken to Canton on No. 35, by Dr. Harrod Stemen. This is the second case of a like nature which has happened in the past six months. Dr. C. B. Stemen said to the reporter that he thought it a shame that old people were sent on long journeys by their relatives "The task is too much of a strain on the minds of old people" said the doctor.

FOUND AT LAST.

The Long Lost Farmer's Wife Discovered on Broadway.

She Had Been Boarding and She Not Realize that Her Friends Were Searching for Her.

Several days ago Mrs. William Gallmeyer, wife of a well known Adams township farmer, wandered away from home and could not be found. She was not quite rational, which made the case all the more sad. She was known to suffer from melancholy. Her husband came to this city and searched everywhere possible. He thought she might be at the residence of her sister, Mrs Waldo, of this city, but such was not the case. The police and sheriff also aided Mr. Gallmeyer in the search for the missing woman but all to no avail. Telegrams and hundreds of postals were sent out over the state and the husband had almost given up the search, thinking that his wife had gone to another state or had suicided by drowning in the river.

It now transpires that all the time the search was going on the missing woman was at the Jesper boarding house, 164 Broadway. Why the proprietor did not notify the distracted husband or the police is a mystery, as they had surely seen the account of the woman's disappearance in the daily papers. The missing woman had paid her board and seemed to be perfectly satisfied with her surroundings, seldom going out of the house. She was restored to her husband.

EDGERTON'S DISGRACE.

Inquiry Into the Double Murder Committed at that Place.

The Dead Killed Old Man Frye—Boyer Son Dead Goes Free—Coroner's Investigation.

The preliminary examination of the Edgerton murder case before Justice Ryan in the superior court room, attracting very little interest, and attended by but few outside of the people who came up from Edgerton, among whom are over a score of witnesses to the bloody affray.

The prosecution is being conducted by Phil B. Colerick, the prosecuting attorney, and his assistant, Will Ryan There are several attorneys on the part of the defense. Joe Devine is represented by Henry Colerick, Hugh Crye, jr., by W. G. Colerick and J. R. Bittenger; Lewis Boner and James L. Crye by J. M. Robinson and Chester Holden, and Emerson Deal by Clarence Edsall.

The inquiry into the details of the case is elaborate and general and Prosecuting Attorney Colerick is endeavoring to bring out all the facts in order to fix guilt upon the proper ones, and as the examination proceeds each of the attorneys cross question the witnesses in the interest of his client.

The first witness called was Silas McPheters and his examination occupied all of yesterday afternoon, from 3 o'clock until the hour of adjournment. This morning the first witness examined was Wm. W. [illegible] Dr. Harrod, the coroner, and Wm [illegible] were then put on the stand and the examination of witnesses lasted until nearly the noon hour.

The examination so far seems to prove beyond the question of a doubt that Joe Deal fired the shot that caused the death of old Hugh Crye and that young Crye killed Boyer. The testimony also shows that Emerson Deal had no criminal connection with the affair and Justice Ryan discharged him from custody, but put him under bond to be present as a witness. Clarence Edsall managed the defense for Emerson Deal and is to be complimented for the skillful manner in which he did it and in securing the acquittal of his client.

The testimony will probably not be finished before tomorrow afternoon or evening. Hugh Crye, jr., is charged with the murder of Doc Boyer, Crye shot him with a double-barrelled shotgun, Joseph Deal is charged with the mur

8% Safest of All Investments.

Nothing equals the stock of Building and Loan Associations.

The capital invested in these Associations in Ohio is shown by a recent report of the state inspector to exceed by many millions the combined capital of all the National, State and Savings Banks of that state.

The same may be at least in part true of many other states, and is probably true of Indiana.

Throughout the country the number of these Associations far exceeds the combined number of National and State and Savings Banks.

Not one of all these Associations but has safely weathered the financial squalls of the past few weeks. The record is a remarkable one and proves true what students of finance have long asserted, that nothing is so absolutely safe as the stock of a conservatively managed Building and Loan Association.

The Tri State is now again selling its Installment Stock. On this stock you pay in 70 cents per share per month, for an estimated time of 78 months. At maturity you receive $100 per share for the payments thus made, affording a most profitable investment.

The Tri State's other stock is intended for persons who desire to receive a regular return from their investment. It is known as

Prepaid Stock.

It pays a dividend of 3 per cent every six months. It is not taxable as it participates under certain contingencies in the other profits of the company.

It is proving a favorite form of investment because of its absolute safety. Whenever desired the money thus invested may be withdrawn with interest to date of withdrawal in accordance with the provisions of section 3110 of the revised statutes of Indiana, which provide that building and loan associations may pay not one-half of their monthly receipts to retiring stockholders.

The average monthly income of the Tri State is now $60,000. Its assets amount to over One Million of Dollars, all invested on first mortgage upon real estate at half its value.

Not a dollar has been lost since the date of its organization, now nearly four years ago—a wonderful record which speaks volumes for the careful, conservative management of the prominent Fort Wayne citizens who are in charge of its affairs.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has been taking a vacation recently and has given its readers a "Week in the most romantic part of Europe" in the form of letters and the entertainment was good. But it was the same old story about romantic Switzerland, the home of the William Tell legend, the cradle of liberty, the most picturesque country in Europe, and so forth and so forth. Why the Enquirer should go abroad for its "Week in Europe" when it can get the same thing at home for half the money and have it much better is a mystery.
